Snacks, Snacks, Snacks

This honestly needs no explanation but is just a little reminder to save yourself a treat for your sleepover night! One thing I've noticed in these weird times is that candy aisles are pretty much untouched (maybe just where I live). So go out and adopt those sour patch kids, they need you now just as much as you need them.

Once your snacks are secured, gather ye friends on the Zoom, Skype, or Video Chat of your choice and get to partyin'!

Games! Games! Games!

Get out your notebook paper, pencils, and craft supplies to play at home

Game Catalogue:

- 1) SMASH
- 2) Cootie Catcher
- 3) Doodle Bug

Game One: SMASH

Y'all remember "MASH" from middle school? It is essentially a game designed to predict your future spouse, job, car, and home. I've updated the game slightly to SMASH, where the categories now help predict how you're going to smash the capitalist patriarchy. But the fun part is making up your own categories!

How to Start

Player - the person who wants their future told

Writer - the person writing down the Player's choices and writing down their own choices for the Player's future, bc sometimes your BFF does know you better than you know yourself.

Step One: Decide who is the Player and who is the Writer.

Step Two: Choose the categories you want for the game (examples on the next page).

Step Three: The Player gets one choice for each category and the Writer gets three choices for each category. The Writer writes down all the choices under each category.

Step Four: Once all the categories have been covered, the Writer begins to draw a spiral and has the Player tell them when to stop drawing. Once the spiral is finished, the Writer counts how many lines are in the spiral. If that number is, for example, 6, then they go through each category and cross off every 6th choice. Going through it again and again until there is only one choice left in each category.

Step Five: The Player's future has been revealed! Each choice left in the category is exactly what will happen in the player's near or distant or nearish-distant future. Choose wisely!

SMASH - Let's Walk Through It!

Game Two: Cootie Catcher

Now that you know your future, use this game to jazz up your present.

We can all easily Google how to make a cootie catcher and then find a video on Youtube of how to play using it, but I did it for you! Wow, I'm tired.

Thank you Kandy Apple Mama and HP!

COOTIE CATCHER

- Take a sheet of 8.5" x 11" paper
- Fold corner until it meets the other side
- Fold other corner and cut off the top
- Unfold the paper
- Fold the corners so the points meet in the middle
- It should now look like this
- Flip it over
- Fold the corners so the points meet in the middle
- It should now look like this
- Fold along the horizontal middle and then the vertical middle
- Open the cootie catcher and work the creases to form four points

kandyapplemama.com

Now that you've made your Cootie Catcher - time to get creative!

Fill those 8 little triangle with fun things for you and your sleepover friends to do.

For example:

- Go in a circle and tell each person one thing you really admire about them
- Dance party! Dance party with just your face!
- Popcorn fight - see who can throw the most popcorn at the screen
- Everyone try to say the same word at the same time, each time building off the previous word. [Ex: Chillhop... Music... Notes...]
- Everyone pitches an idea for an episode of their favorite or least favorite sitcom

More examples...

- Tell your friend your favorite memory of them
- Best butt - whoever picked this one has the the greatest butt of all time.
- Fancy laugh - everyone laugh like a fancy british aristocrat (aristocat?) who is simply tickled
- Everyone choose what their Jellicle Cat name would be (Mine is Grumblepuss)
- Prank Call - a real classic! Prank call any friend who couldn't make it.
- Jurassic Park Party - everyone dance like a dinosaur for one minute!
- Chuckle heads - go in a circle and remember a time where you all laughed really hard together.

Yay you did it!

Now you have a cute little game within a game!

And depending on how many folks are at your sleep over, you can make as many cootie catchers with as many different options as ya want!

Last but not least... Game Three:
Doodle Bug!

This one is simple, one person starts a doodle and then you go around until each person has added to the picture.

But how do you do it online?

I recommend these sites for group doodling

And they are all free!

<https://drawesome.uy/>

<https://jackboxgames.com/drawful-two/> (different kind of game, but still fun)

Congrats! You've made it to Part Three: Gossip

Why do all these stock images of "gossip" just look like lesbians having a great time on a date?

We all love a little light hearted gossip with our sleepovers but it can be tough to come by in the days of social distancing. So keep the gossip close to home and talk shit about your stuffed animals & pets! And/or encourage them to gossip about each other.

I heard she lives in the crack between the bed and the wall.

I'm right here.

Example with my own stuffed friends with help from my human friend, Jasmine

Note: always make sure to get your stuffed animals pronouns first so you can properly roast them.

"Why does Pikachu look like a high banana?"
- Jasmine

"My only issue with her is that she's too perfect." - Molly

"Since all the beans sank into his feet, Piplup is not as soft to cuddle with." - Molly

He drinks out of the toilet.

She pees in my water bowl.

Keep the gossip playful and make sure to spread it throughout your sleepover group chat. This is the hot goss your friends need during this trying time!

Warning: your pets may also spread gossip about you.

LOVE

2AM Love Fest

Or really whenever you want, but make sure it happens!

Usually best done once you're riding that sugar high and perhaps an actual high, let your sleepover besties know exactly what they mean to you. Speak from the heart, let it be awkward if it needs to be, and try your best to let each person know why you love them. Here's a few starters when thinking of what to say...

You inspire me
by...

I love how you
show your love

Thank you for existing

5 things I deeply admire about you are..

LOVE

Now that you are full of love, snacks, inside jokes, laughter, connection, juicy gossip, and most likely have the terrible songs from "Girl Trash" stuck in your head, it's time to say goodnight to your friends and head to bed.

OH, AND DON'T FORGET...

Make sure you have a delicious breakfast planned for the morning!
